General Approach

The Congress intends to be a reflection point on the current events affecting the definition, construction and evolution of the Spanish and European energy law, starting from the new legal package on clean energy, fundamental regulatory basis of the Energy Union project.

The reference we hereby make to the community legal system obeys to the growing importance the energy sector has. As it is well known, European law is integrated in the national law forming a harmonized regulation field, when not uniform, to which also some, desirably common, regulation principles and institutions must be subjected to.

The new EU energy model offers a wide number of novelties in the legal aspect which we must identify, study and interpret, in order to foster and make the development of the national energetic systems easier.
